Being 21 is way there. When you're 21 you're finally old enough to have the world. Meet it head on accepting full responsibility. And you're young enough to get a break, take a few good punches, throw a lot more back and keep on going. Sex is terrific. You can have it your way, any way, any time; anywhere. You can order drinks and never pay for them. You can smile and dance and look great, or not. And just knowing you can have just about anything in the world that you want–certainly sexually–makes things way rad. Just spread your legs and the world's your oyster. Unless you're like totally geeked in which case you still have your computer. Go surf.

Most of us are or were there. The big twenty-one. Some of us keep coming back to it, or in it, or at least near it...whereas many others simply can't let it go, despite the beatings. That's the way it is with being 21. It's a magic thing. Even though we've been opening our legs for at least three years, it's the time when we open our eyes, maybe for the first time, and things suddenly are different. Better. Brighter. Bigger. More real.

Blueboy's a 21 Club member now. With this way cool birthday bash ish we've grown. We're bigger and totally better. We look different, sound and feel different; and, we've got a lot more to say about it.

Learning is a big part about growing. And a key to learning is listening. Now's your chance to be heard and see if it makes a difference to us. Send me your comments on our coming of age. Let me know what you think and what you would like to see or see more of. Mark your envelope to my personal attention and address it to the Blueboy 21 Club. I'll personally respond to each letter the day I receive it. Good or geek. Write on. Meantime let's celebrate. Buy us a drink and take us home with you. Chances are good you'll get lucky. Then again, there's always your computer.

Later,

From Ricki Lake, Montel Williams and Leeza emerges a new generation of quality host persona : meet People Magazine's "Face to Watch."

FLO • While many television viewers see this 32-year-old hunk as a newcomer in the world of talk TV, Charles Perez has actually been on the circuit for some time. As a producer, he was at the helm of Ricki Lake, Leeza, and Montel Williams. However, Perez felt that he had more to contribute in front of the camera than behind it.

Sez Perez " I wanted to do something that no other talk show was doing. I wanted to have a smart, provocative and just plain bold conversation with young Americans."

Along with friends and family, the innovative entrepreneur financed his own pilot for a show.

"I called everyone I had ever known, people who truly believed I could get this done, " his words.

The show was bought by Tribune Entertainment and the rest is history.

Currently touted by People Magazine as a "FAce to Watch," Charles was especially impressive in his support of the recent One Million Black Man March on Washington.

Laughs Perez " I love dialogue, debate and issues when they are argued in a healthy environment. So many shows try to feed America's youth what they should think on any given issue. This show presumes that our viewers are intelligent individuals who, if given all sides of a story, can form their own opinions."

A person who lives by the creed that dreams can come true, Perez also believes that timing is everything.

Sez Perez " Sometimes, you knock on doors and nothing happens. Other times, you tap lightly and tremendous opportunities present themselves."

• The time for Charles Perez is definitely upon us.

This 32-year-old stud is a veteran producer with a proven success track record from countless episodes of day-talk TV tabloids. His life reflects a true success story just coming to light for many taddle televiewers who know him mostly from his way visual hosting of the highly successfully syndicated "let's chat" program bearing his name. Charles-Dabney Perez is a winner who chooses not to consider life's challenges as the luck of the draw, but rather lives by the theory that true success is where opportunity meets preparedness. And prepared he was and continues to be as opportunity meets this wholesome young talk personality with open arms.

Just because he got it elongated, doesn't mean that John Bobbitt, knows what to do with his penis. Penthouse Pet Lorrie Morgan says that Johnny is an inexperienced lover. Says Lorrie: He doesn't know anything about oral sex and his penis is shaped funny." Lorrie, what did you expect? I mean, the guy's thing was chopped off and then reconnected. Anyway, this buxom babe also says that Bobbitt couldn't walk after his operation. I won't even touch that one.

I suppose you've heard of weirder things, but rumor has it that Alexis Arquette a/k/a Eva Destruction is an expectant father. The popular drag queen is the brother of Patricia and Roseanna Arquette and was most recently seen as a man in Pulp Fiction. Now, Alexis supposedly told one of my pals that he has a wife who is pregnant. Says another source: "The girlfriend told me that she wants to have Alexis' baby and it's going to happen soon Who'll be the mother? Who'll be the father? Only time will tell.

Here's another odd couple: The King of "B" movies, Eric Roberts, has a film appearing that's heading straight to video. Can you guess why? In "It's My Party," Julia's big brother throws his tongue down Gregory Harrison's throat in a passionate kiss. The normally straight-laced Harrison is best known for his portrayal of Gonzo on Trapper John. He sounds like a john that got trapped for good!

Times are tough for Burt Reynolds. The aging sex symbol is taking a $2,000 a month loss on a rental of his Beverly Hills home because he can't afford to stay there. Says a source: "Burt leased the house for $8,900 a month. His budget is tight, so he'll sublet it for $7,600 a month, and head back to Florida. It's a shame, Loni, ease up on the boy. He has to eat."

Money bags Mike Tyson is at it again. The former heavyweight champ recently bought his pregnant girlfriend, Monica Turner, a $2.5 million home in Bethesda, Maryland. The exquisite digs set on two acres, overlooking a golf course. They should have taught Monica how to wheel and deal a little better at Georgetown Medical School. The house is in Iron Mike's name, while, a swimming pool that's being built, is in hers. It sounds like somebody is diving into hot water.

All right, guys. Antonio Benderas had no problem smooching it up with Tom Hanks in Philadelphia. Says the Latin lover: "...kissing another man seemed perfectly normal to me." Go for it..

Club Seen : All of you ex-Sound Factory buffs will be able to head back that way. The club is opening again as Twilo. Donatella Versace gave her collections bash there with the world in attendance.

Mellow Sounds : Epic* Recording stars Groove Theory are currently heating up the charts with three hot singles...Tell Me, Anointed, and It's in God's Hands Now. The name of the slamming group's album is The Call. They are currently on tour with stops in Philadelphia, Boston, Cleveland, Detroit and New York.

My man, Luther Vandross, put out a Christmas album some of you may have already added to your collection called: This is Christmas. The male vocalist of our time, Luther, is joined on the album by friends such as Darlene Love, Clarence Clemons, Cissy Houston, Valerie Simpson and Richard Marx.

Movie Moves : Eclipse*, written and directed by Jeremy Podeswa. A hit at the New Directors, New Films series, Eclipse is a funny, provocative look at how a major eclipse affects the carnal longings of a diverse group of people. One libidinous encounter jettisons another, leading to a hilarious roundel of sexual intrigue, ingeniously culminating to the original bedroom rendezvous.

Headless Body in Topless Bar*, written by Peter Koper: directed by James Bruce. The famed New York Post headline is the inspiration for this dark, comical film about the grisly goings-on at a seedy Manhattan topless club. A good see for sure.

BIEN ENTENDUS...KELLY BARBIERI

JOSEPH CULTICE

"I want my son off your mailing list, I have already contacted the Post Office about the pornographic material that I have received in the mail, and the next stop is my attorney. I do not want this number called anymore and I do not want anything delivered to my address. If I receive anything else from this band, the next phone call will be my attorney and you will be contacted. Thank you and good bye!"

Yes, this reaction by a Florida mother to the band themselves, is what most of the establishment is having towards Marilyn Manson. Not that they give a damn, on the contrary, the band feels that the populous have only themselves to blame if they are offended- Marilyn Manson merely mirrors the sociological ills that have made them what they are. Mr. Manson freely admits that most parents are afraid to expose their children to Marilyn Manson—and they should be, because they are their children. And now the children have arrived to proclaim the consequence of what their genitors have turned them into.

One would have to say that the most frightening thing about Marilyn Manson is that they aren't faking. The rage that's so pure and warped on their albums as well as their live show is for real. Any oral sex they might (or might not) engage in on stage is real. The fires they set and they blood that courses down their bodies is real. True, there have been those who that say that the make-up they don is reminiscent of Kiss and Alice Cooper, and while this may be true to an extent, those people fail to understand that the bands of the '70s were glorifying the name of Show Business. And that, ladies and gentlemen, is something Marilyn Manson don't give a fuck about.

Emerging from the depths of "Fort Lauderhell" Florida in 1994, with their premier recording, Portrait Of An American Family and subsequent opening slot on the Nine Inch Nails "Self Destruct" tour, the five members; Mr. Manson (vocals), Daisy Berkowitz (Guitars), Twiggy Ramirez (Bass), Madonna Wayne Gacy (Hammond B3 Organ) and Ginger Fish (Drums) hated their surroundings, were tormented by their peers and despised all that society thought important. The band was formed the band in retaliation and through their non-stop touring with NIN as well as on their own, they are steadily gaining believers, which is really what a Marilyn Manson fan is, they have faith that there is no right and wrong: the individual is free to hate who they want, look how they want and fuck whoever they want.

The monikers of the band (as you may already guessed) are not their own--they are concocted from people in the limelight–the first name taken from "good" role models and the last names are derived from serial killers. They do this because the members of Marilyn Manson feel that the media does little to distinguish between the positive and negative--a murderer can become just as famous as a rock star--and can be idealized just as much.

Now the band have released a devastating new EP, Smells Like Children, which contains a cover of the Eurithmics hit song, "Sweet Dreams" the meaning of the lyrics come all the more clear in the rendition: "Some of them want to abuse you, some of them want to be abused..." and it is made most clear by Mr. Manson that abusing you, is something that he passionately wishes to do! Incorporating re-mixes of songs off of Portrait as well as several other covers, Smells Like Children is the perfect soundtrack for all your most obscene childhood nightmares, taking the listener farther into the psychology of Marilyn Manson–a place where the faint of heart definitely should not wander.

Next on the band's agenda is to wrap up their current National headlining tour, after which, they plan to head to New Orleans and record their next full-length album, Antichrist Superstar at the funeral parlor-converted recording studio of none other than Trent Reznor. Those who know the savagery of Manson's music should not be at all surprised that they choose to record in a place where the dead once laid–prone–open to intrusion. And one can be sure that with Antichrist Superstar they will continue to erase their already fine line between right and wrong, male or female and good and bad.

"It's too late to take it all back. This is your world in which we grow and we will grow to hate you." Indeed.

Your most urgent sex and health queries

by Monty Pasqualotto

IT CAN BE TOUGH GETTING answers to questions you have pertaining to your personal health practices and needs. The information highway runs short in magazines, television and word of mouths both credentialed and well (or ill) intentioned. Likewise messages from that same information highway can be overwhelming...and it's often times leaves you feeling like a whirling dervish. Here we've sorted through a lot of your questions and come up with some frank retorts to set the record straight and hopefully your mind at ease. Although the information you find here pertains to a variety of topics from rubbers and STDs to dos and don'ts on pleasures and performance, we've condensed each to a key focus on the showcased issue and the most immediate, clear and concise response we can provide.

1 I just finished sucking my first uncut cock. The jury's still out on that one. Does being uncircumcised have any effect on a man's sexual enjoyment?

It may–but what do you care as long as you're getting of? Whether circumcision heightens or dampens pleasure is still a matter of debate in the medical community. Domestically, doctors began circumcising babies only about a century ago. The reason may surprise you as to why this practice came about. Believe it or not it was in the mistaken belief that this would prevent masturbation later in life. It wasn't until much later that doctors came to the belief that circumcision lowered the risk of various infections and penile cancer.

2 Could masturbating regularly diminish my sexual desire?

Like the hair you won't see growing on your palm because of your sudden blindness, this is yet another wives' tale. A 1992 University of Chicago survey of people ages 19 to 59 found that masturbation and frequent sex are not mutually exclusive. Among the group of respondents having the most sex–cohabitating couples, nearly half of whom had sex three to six times a week–37 percent of boy toys and 13 percent of cows also beat off at least once a week. Interestingly that was almost exactly the same amount of solo whoopie practiced by sluts who live on their own.

The idea that masturbation saps your strength, that there's a certain limited number of orgasms that you should use up, is totally unfounded and nothing about masturbation will cause you not to like sex with a partner. If anything it may help you to understand your body better, in a way that improves sex with a lover. And it can stoke your desire by getting you in touch with erotic feelings and fantasies.

3 How likely is it that I could get AIDS from sucking cock?

Not very. Seems researchers believe that HIV is more resistant to transmission by oral genital contact than many other STDs (herpes, for instance). The reason is not known, but one theory is that stomach acids can kill the virus. Work up your ulcer on that one, Mary.

4 What's the latest condom story? Are some really better than others?

The FDA noted in a memo released in early 1995 that "testing will always show some variation between different brands of condoms." Questions about the safety of particular condom styles arose in spring, 1995, after Consumer Reports submitted 37 styles of several major brands of condoms to an "air burst" test, inflating them until they exploded. The magazine rated seven styles as failing to withstand sufficient amounts of pressure.

Keep in mind, however,r that even the lowest-rated condoms still provided substantial protection against STDs and pregnancy. And Consumer Reports tested only condoms that were made before the FDA instituted more stringent standards for the manufacture of condoms. So if you stick to using condoms made in November 1994 or later (check the stale date on the side of your package), any American brand yo buy should be safe.

5 My sugar daddy's a cybersex sleaze, which is okay because I don't want to fuck him, I only want his money. Just the same, is there a chance some geek gold-digger might take over my action?

According to University of Washington sociologists, cybersex is not the same thing as traditional pornography. A man looking at Blueboy is engaging in a one-way activity. Cybersex is a two-way street: An on-line "fuck buddy" can talk back (like I'm sure you've had experience) and might someday even show up at your doorstep and whisk crusty butt buh-buy. Time for some hot coffee up the old hard drive, babe.

6 I'm a lesbian and I'm concerned about vaginal discharge and getting close with a lover. How should it look and smell?

It shouldn't. Cooze ooze is like carbon monoxide: odorless, colorless and quite tasteless. But if you must discuss, there's tremendous variety in the heaviness of discharge in women. Some perfectly healthy women have to wear a minipad every day because of vaginal discharge. As a general rule, if it doesn't burn, itch or smell bad, fishy or foul, it's probably a dick, which is what you think you can do without. If none of the above discomforts exist, however, you're probably fine even if your discharge is heavy. Vaginal discharge changes over the course of a woman's cycle, becoming copious, clear and stretchy around ovulation, when she's most fertile. At other times of the month, discharge is clear to slightly yellowish in color. Douching just changes the pH of the snatch, which can lead to the growth of yuck and yeast. You could end up with an infection that could turn faces from afar. If excess moisture from heavy discharge is making you itchy, try topical cortisone, applied sparingly. Or just go to your OBGYN for rot removal.

7 Can I transmit herpes if I'm not having a flare-up? Can our lesbian surrogate mom transmit it to my lover's baby?

Using a highly sensitive test, researchers found that on 50 percent of the days that the virus was detected on genital mucus membranes, the subjects had no obvious genital lesions.

Just the same, until more definitive answers are available, you can't be sure exactly when you're contagious, you need to discuss your infection with your sex partner and decide together about condom use between flare ups. New developments, however, may do away with the need for some couples to use condoms as herpes prevention. More than 70 percent of the estimated 40 million Americans with herpes have no symptoms or symptoms so mild they don't even know they're infected. A person may feel tortured about the possibility of infecting a lover who already has the virus.

Herpes transmission during childbirth is rare. According to ASHA, fewer than one in 1,000 babies born to infected cows get herpes themselves, in part because infants tend to acquire antibodies to the virus while in the snatch. But for infected babies, consequences can be severe. One out of six dies, and others suffer brain damage. If you're surrogate is pregnant and has herpes, or if your partner does, tell your doctor and go from there. If she's having flareups when it's time to deliver she will probably recommend a cesarean, since the risk of transmission increases at that time. Something about passing through those lips all a'stretchin. If she tramps and gets herpes for the first time while knocked up, you should also discuss a cesarean, since she has no sense and may hot have time to develop and pass on antibodies to your fetus before delivery. Otherwise, the risk is minimal.

8 How long should it take me to climax?

How big is the dick up your ass? There's no magic clock which typifies a man's shooting cycle, other than perhaps the one governing the wrinkles on the butt of your trick. Some guys do a quickie-jizz while others hold out. Lots has to do with stimulation, frequency of sex and weathering of your coochie. Just the same, both ends of the continuum are psychologically and physically okay. If you're a postal worker on the fret, suffer from pre-mature jizz-off and related stress, consulting a therapist or physician may be the ticket.

SHE SAW US CUMMING!

Pop a Ho!

"Johnny and I were out on the town and ran into a slut named Kitten–can you deal?–who decided she was into two cocks going and cumming every which way; she could never have guessed how the evening would actually turn out with the two of us bumping uglies while her sorry, wrinkled, fag hag ass was screwed into a chair in other room...watching CNN while the two of us fucked and snorted like pigs..."

by H. Henderson

He guided my cock into his asshole and backed onto it like a bitch dog in heat...sliding the head of my dick deep in his butthole was an incredible experience. In the same motion, he guided my cock into his ass and surprisingly, it slid in like he had already been fucked by a really big cock, greased and ready for another...and I plowed him good, squeeling and banging his head against the wall giving Kitten something to milk her dry tits on...

A while back I lived in South Florida. More specifically, an exclusive waterfront community next to Pompano Beach and Ft. Lauderdale. The group I drank with consisted of younger guys ranging from professionals to swimming pool maintenance business owners.

At the time, I assumed that they were all straight–which is what I'm into; the challenge of a hot, turn out fuck–for even though the group didn't chase the girls, we enjoyed topless clubs, etc., and played the beach-plus hobby cat sailing and any other macho thing that you could think of.

One of the group was a good-looking, dark-haired five-foot-eleven inch, 150-pound fucking god named Johnny. He lived in a neighboring community, but we liked the same things and went out to the bars in my area. Which is not to say that if Johnny had wanted to go out somewhere closer to Mars I wouldn't have figured out someway–anyway–to get there and be with him. He was, and is, absolutely the most beautiful man I have

"She thought she was hot, but I was the one to give Johnny what he really needed...my fat cock right up his butt, fucking him like the bitch instead of her..."

a self made millionnaire, this home-spun super model knows how to make a big cock crack the big bucks.

"I remember the first Stryker video that I saw. He was a mechanic and these two guys were out in the lot playing ball. Stryker comes out from the garage and accuses them of breaking a window or something and drags their asses into the garage. He then proceeds to make them service his huge cock in both mouths, licking and eating each other during and in between fuck sessions as Stryker takes turns hosing each of their young, hungry assholes. It was probably the most exciting video I have ever seen and I have to admit that it has become a mainstay fantasy of mine.

"What turns me on most about Stryker is that he always comes across straight and tough. I know a lot of people think he over plays that, but not for me. I'd deliver both my lover's lungs in a zip-lock bag just to spend an evening with Jeff telling me what to do. Making me suck his enormous cock. Commanding me open my legs and spread my wet, quivering snatch as he feeds my boy-pussy with that outrageous cock."

"Jeff Stryker has to be the all time biggest (literally) super star in erotic films. Clearly his name has become a household word since his emergence into the gay video scene back in the 80s. I haven't seen much of him lately, unless you count the rubber-cast dildo I just bought last week to replace the three priors of his that I fried in my hole over the last two years."

"I heard somewhere that he gets paid every time somebody uses his name or for every item bearing his trademarked cock and stage name. My guess is that he's probably the most successful living porn star today. I see him every now and then. He owns a house up by mine in the Hollywood Hills and drives a vette. God, what I'd do to meet him and spend just one hour. I'd be on my faggot knees so fucking fast sucking that prick, I can't tell you. And don't think for a minute that I couldn't handle that fat cock in my ass, either. I could, and have if you count that realistic replica they sell in the porn shops. I keep Jeff bedside and only bring him out when my hole needs a good servicing. This is one dildo I don't share. And I find it particularly exciting watching one of his earlier videos and turning up the should as he tells those sluts he's fucking how to act. How to take the big one. It's so cool. He's so cool.

"Jeff Stryker is straight, I heard. Doesn't he have a daughter or son or something? And what's the story about his brother. I saw him in a couple videos and then that seemed to be the end of him. What I'd love to see is the two of them getting it on. Even if it were with a third person with the both of them fucking the guy. Maybe one in his mouth and one in his ass. Hey, I'm available anytime for one or both!"

"I'd deliver my lover's lungs in a zip-lock bag just to sqat on that fat Stryker cock!"

"He comes across tough and straight and it makes my crack quiver!"

There was no political motivation in the beginning, no cohesive theme to rally around. Like all movements, it gradually evolved over a period of many years: Brian Miller

Skin heads homophobia crime

par Brian Miller

They say it couldn't happen again when the skinhead movement began rather innocently in England during the '60s. The skinheads were a direct descendant of the rockers and mods, disenchanted and disenfranchised groups of young men from the working classes who vented their frustrations about living conditions, unemployment and a general feeling of rebellion against the status quo through expressions of mild violence at music concerts. Their close-cut and shaved heads evolved as a form of self-expression that set them apart from other youth groups. But the movement, if a movement it truly was in Britain, was never politicized to the extent that it became once it moved across the Atlantic to the United States and Canada.

Even here, in the 1970s, in imitation of their cousins across the water, it was viewed as a fad, at best, that was largely confined to the punk rock scene. For a time, slam-dancing, the forerunner of today's "mosh pits" at rock events was a way for the young men with shaved heads to vent their frustrations. Decked out in leather bomber jackets, narrow cut jeans with suspenders and high top army boots, they were a curiosity to most observers and not considered a threat. There was no political motivation in the beginning, no cohesive theme to rally around. Like all movements, it gradually evolved over a period of years.

In the early years, violence sometimes spilled over onto the streets in the form of bashing. Blacks, Asians and gay men and women were the usual target, a way for the "skins" to make their initial statements. But the incidents, although wide-spread, were unrelated, even though they were happening in various large cities across the country. But the incidents escalated rapidly to include mayhem and murder, crimes which mainly went unsolved.

In the anti-Semitic South, with its relatively small Jewish populations attacks began to escalate concurrent with the skinheads growing adoption of Nazi dogma. By 1989 the greatest number of crimes against Jews were recorded in 11 years, as tracked by the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith.

neo nazi rallies

Skinheads use violence for the explicit purpose of instilling

Today the major storm troops of the Fascist right are no longer the Ku Klux Klan, but skinheads. They have now embraced Nazi ideology with the neo-Nazi movement responsible for organizing the skinheads in an unprecedented and highly successful recruiting drive. Their mission is to eliminate "impure" elements corrupting society, in their view. Targeted are blacks, gays, non-European minorities, leftists and capitalists. They comprise the fastest growing segment of the racist right. The Atlanta-based Center for Democratic Renewal, a watchdog organization, counts more than 24 groups in the United States today with some 3500 active members, plus a much larger group of sympathizers.

How did this group of discontented music fans get co-opted into a political and criminal force? Much of the blames is attached to Tom Metzger's White Aryan Resistance. Metzger saw the potential for organizing and focusing the theretofore unorganized groups and turning them into militant neo-Nazis.

Working hand-in-glove with his son John, president of the Aryan Youth Movement, the pair began actively reaching out and recruiting skinheads in the late 1980s, playing on their fears and frustrations brought about by unemployment, falling living standards, poverty and hopelessness. Many are products of broken homes. Many suffered both physical, mental and sexual abuse as children. They are for the most part high school dropouts who have also dropped out of the mainstream of society. Easy pickings for the neo-Nazis, since everyone else, they felt, were ignoring them.

Their groups now bear names such as the American Frontists, Confederate Hammerskins, Atlantic City Skins. Their presence is felt most strongly in Texas, Colorado, California, North Carolina, Florida and Nebraska, although there is a skinhead presence of one sort or another in every state and large city.

Where the Aryan Youth Movement has failed to reach them, conservative Christian sects such as the Church of the Creator has. Christian Identity, another sect, calls blacks "mud people" who God created in error on the third day of the Creation. Still other groups have affiliated themselves with Odinism, the worship of the old Norse gods. And there are Satanic ties in some groups as well.

No matter what the vehicle, the focus remains the same:

fear in innocent people and they use that violence like zealots..

hatred of people different from themselves. And the groups that have been spawned by the various organizations are actively recruiting new members at a rapid pace, most often recruiting high school students to join loosely organized cadres supporting a specific political agenda. The recruits gain respect in the various groups by hurting people, "messing others up." And if they don't, they get messed up. Their objective is to instill fear in both their own members and the objects of their hatred. They succeed at both.

The Anti Defamation League believes that skinhead groups are now a much bigger threat than the KKK. They are widely acknowledged to be the most violent extremist group in the country. Murders, shootings, assaults, threats and vandalism are their modus operandi.

Skinheads use violence for the explicit purpose of instilling fear in innocent people and they use that violence like the zealots that they are.

When they are caught up in and by the movement, they believe that once a skinhead always a skinhead. Those who become disillusioned with the lifestyle should be prepared to pay dearly. They treat defectors with equal brutality. One case in point: a president of one of the skinhead groups began to question the dogma of the movement as he grew older. When his conscience would no longer allow him to continue and he resigned from his organization, his former followers nailed him to a cross by his hands in revenge for his perceived betrayal.

He was forced to go into hiding and eventually, when he'd recovered from the trauma of his wounds, relocate to another city and change his identity in order to avoid further retribution. He is now living near New York City and agreed to a short interview, provided we would not reveal his new identity. He is both intelligent and articulate. Our conversation proved to be very enlightening.

"It's not that I live in fear," he said. "It's been a couple of years and I doubt that anyone is actively looking for me, but you never know with the crazies in the movement what might happen."

"John" as we will call him, did admit that he had done a few things to change his appearance. The most obvious was his shoulder length hair.

The reasons he gave for his change of heart about the skinhead movement he attributes to his maturing process. "When a guy reaches his twenties and begins to look around him, it becomes rather obvious that the values I embraced as a teenager didn't really apply to the world we are all forced to live in. The ever increasing violence of the movement became a real turn-off for me. It no longer made sense to go out and beat people up just for the joy of inflicting pain or to make a point.

"I came to realize that the only real way to effect change in the world was within the system and not outside of it.

"I also began to see through the rhetoric and recognize it for what it really is. Sure, I had a lot of resentments when I was a kid. My father was a violent drunk who used to beat me and my two brothers for no reason at all.

"And my uncle abused me sexually from the time I was ten until I was sixteen and big enough to fight back. I beat the shit out of him one day. But, of course, my father refused to believe his brother could do such a thing and kicked me out of the house.

"I lived on the streets for months until I met a skinhead dude who befriended me, found me a place to stay, got me a job and taught me to hate society.

"I still think there are a lot of things wrong with this world. I just no longer happen to believe that the skins are the way to go."

Asked about the growing involvement of girls in the movement, John grimaced and paused for a long time.

"There were hardly any girls involved when I first got into the movement, but by the time I decided to check out of the scene, there were about ten girls in our cadre.

"They weren't just girl friends either, although a few of them did get passed around among the leaders. Let me tell you, I'd rather go up against a group of male skinheads than face a few of those girls. They can be really vicious and once they believe in what they are doing there's no stopping them. If you've never been kicked by a steel-toed Doc Marten boot you probably won't understand. The night I got nailed to that cross, a couple of the girls got in a few kicks and those mothers hurt!"

When I asked him if the "passing around" involved orgies he only smiled and winked conspiratorially. But after pressed on the subject he relented and told the following story.

"One night I remember as vividly as if it had happened yesterday. You have to understand that we were all in our teens and teenage boys and girls are always horny.

"On this particular night there were only three of the acknowledged leaders in our headquarters. Our meeting had ended earlier and we were kicking back, listening to some tunes and knocking back a few beers.

"Two of the girls who had just been initiated had hung back

Fran Cohen was born 10 July 1973. He lives in Rio and he was discovered by Kristen Bjorn during Bjorn's country wide model search. Cohen appears in two of Bjorn's hottest new releases Carnival in Rio and Island Fever.

Kristen Bjorn has become one of the world's foremost videographers. The fact that his models are all throbbing hard and cum even without touching themselves speaks well of this incredibly handsome producer who once was a porn star himself.

BJORN AGAIN SCORE

Kristen Bjorn selects his models using first his eye, then his gut feeling. He can tell by the sensuality of the model when he meets him whether or not he'll perform well behind the camera before a test shot is ever taken.

There's a style to all the Kristen Bjorn videos. They're so sensual while at the same time being sexual to the level of trashy. The men are incredibly hot and each makes you feel like you could have them, right then and there. Just step right up and in...

There's no pressure on the Bjorn video set while the cameras are running. No drugs. No attitude...every body is genuinely having a great time, and it shows.

Kristen is most famous for his "one shot" scenes which require little editing since most of the footage you see is just the way it went down.

It's easy being a big Mary. Staying at home, alone. Getting doodie-faced drunk and going out to get laid, then waking up the next morning regretting the outcome. Whatever. Sound familiar? Problem with many gay men is that they're homophobic. Afraid of other gay men. They prefer taking the stance of negativity when it comes to their love life without benefiting from the advantage of being gay when it comes to picking out, up or on another gay man. In a sense, homophobic: Afraid to go after another man for fear of rejection, lack of confidence, or simply not rehearsing their spontaneity sufficiently enough to let the words speak for themselves, from the heart, rather than muddled up around all those toes. When was the last time you went out looking for a lover and found one? Liar. Never is the answer here. If your sad ass has ever had anyone stay past your burned breakfast after a mediocre mercy morning bone burial, you came about whatever relationship you have, had or hope to have by Lady Luck. When you were least expecting it along he came. And up went those legs of yours for a couple months until he found better elsewhere. Like one or more of your friends. Well, now is the time, whatever your relationship situation, potential or goal, to take a closer look into a man's mind. Perhaps a little more introspection is likewise in order. Read on and see if this honest to Abe truth about what men are really thinking strikes a nerve. If you're lucky, you may just get it, for in this case, lucky is as lucky does.

Butch R. Blanch is Blueboy's chief staff photographer.

Blanch discovered Patrick Castelli shooting for a local bar opening in Manhattan.

Born July 16, 1973, Castelli is a native Australian who's here in the States to see where life takes him.

Although he misses Sydney, Castelli says there's no place like New York and he plans on taking in as much as he can while he's here.

PATRICK CASTELLI

Even though Castelli is a quiet sort and this exclusive Blueboy shoot was the first time he's taken his clothes off for a camera, he had no problem whatsoever getting into it.

"He's a handsome man who has a great sense of humor once the ice is broken," says B. Blanch, photographer. "A pleasure to work with."

And now his pleasures are all yours.

"I met a van of crack slappy Hackers"

by Malcolm Tibbs

I felt like going out for a peaceful drink and maybe maybe dance a bit and meet someone nice. Little did I know my night would end up in the back of a geek van with a half dozen crack slapping computer hackers...

take my advice:

Ever get to the point where you're like totally over where you are, what you're doing...even who you are? Well, I fall into that dead zone every now and then and when I do I find the best thing for me is to go out and get shit faced drunk, get lucky (maybe, maybe not) use up a dozen or so condoms (with our without anyone being there but me and my box of rubber cocks) and walk funny for the rest of the week.

I was in that mood the other night. I'd had a shitty day at work. Nothing had been going right. My love life was beginning to show that fondness does not necessarily equate with distance, and I was fucking over it. I wanted a man. I wanted him right then. And I wanted him up in my ass fucking my lights out like the tramp I was after three martinis. Watch out.

I live in the Hollywood Hills. It's easy to get to a bar by heading down Laurel Canyon Boulevard all the way until you get to Santa Monica, turn either direction and there you have it.

I ended up at the Gold Coast. A fun bar. I ran into some guy I knew who took up way too much of my valuable time, so I told him to fade, but he just laughed and stayed. Some guy overheard our conversation and decided he'd slide his hand down the back of my pants and start fingering my asshole.

At first I didn't know how to act. I've never been fingered in a bar before, but I have to admit it felt great. That mystery hand slipping down the back of your jeans and working it's way down your crack. I was really getting into it and the next thing I know some bartender is grabbing the two of us and tossing us out the back way like two bags of trash.

Albeit slightly embarrassed, I was perhaps a bit too friendly with my asshole assault man. In the bar I hadn't taken a good look at him, and once out in the gruesome street lights he wasn't that hard on the eyes. Surprisingly cute. And young. He suggested that we go over to his place to continue things, specifically he wanted me to sit on his face and let him eat my hole. That didn't sound too bad, so I next find myself crawling into the back of a seedy van that looked like it came through some quantum leap from the late 60's. Flower power shit and all, you know.

Once inside the van I realize that we're not alone. As a matter of fact, the whole fucking thing was filled with these giggling geeks and I for one was not prepared for that.

acker mantra: You're always ten years younger, twenty pounds lighter, way smarter and richer and fuck 'em if they don't know how to surf...

My finger man told me to relax, and that everything would work out just fine. One of them hands me a joint and I'm flying in about three minutes. Suddenly this van of geeks is all about a van of naked geeks and they're looking at me like some new software or something, ready to rip open the package, load me up, and then pass me along to the rest to have at it.

And that's just about the story. The night I met my computer dates, all in one van. Seven, I think there were. And once I got over all those black socks, white butts and glasses, I sorta got into it. These guys were attentive, to say the least.

Fingers was the first to have at my hole. He ate me while two of his buds sucked and licked my cock and balls.

Then some really geeky dweeb decided he had the authority to sit his tired ass on my face. If it weren't for his enormous cock (we're talking a good ten inches soft, and not measured from the asshole) I would have had a real attitude exchange, but instead, I rolled over and made it clear that my hole needed that fat cock.

One after another those geeks worked my hole. They gang-fucked me, two of them holding my buttcheeks apart while one of the others in line mounted my hole and fucked me like the geek tramp I'd become. Once I got over the snorting and giggling, I really started to get into it. These guys were treating me real trashy and things were working out just fine.

Soon I found myself like Marilyn Chambers in one of her famous old scenes where she's got a cock in her snatch, one in her ass, one in both hands and two in her mouth. Well that was me, all but the snatch, of course. Instead there were two in my butt. And those guys were working me. I was coughing and choking on cock. They were ramming me, and fucking me. Some guy even tried to stick his cock in my eye, but that wasn't happening.

I don't know which one of them came up with the great idea of turning me into the bad birthday boy, but soon I realized that my hole had no cock in it. It was still throbbing from the gang fucking, but I wasn't begging boned and I hadn't cum yet, so that didn't make me all too happy.

Before I could adequately voice my displeasure, I had two cocks back in my mouth and somebody broke out a box of those flat ping pong paddles and it was all about me on all fours, sucking two fat cocks and getting my butt paddled big-time by the balance; two at a time.

They didn't really start pounding at first and it felt kinda good. Then two of the guys pushed me down flat and spread open my cheeks again. I thought it was time for some more fucking, but instead they really started slapping my asshole–not my ass, but my ass hole–with those damn paddles.

Thank god I'd douched before leaving home, because that crack slapping was splattering all that dick ooze and grease and stuff all over the place. On my back, the back of my neck. Clear around and down the side of my face. It was totally gross. I managed to pull a couple inches of a couple of cocks out of my throat enough to look up and to the left to see three of the guys on their knees jerking off. They pulled off their three (yes, three) rubbers each...snap, snap snap, down on my back, my ass and stuck to the inside wall of the van...and came all over me. I was a fucking cum urinal with geek dicks all over the place shooting their loads.

Once the three Geek-a-teers shot their mucky loads all over me, their two buds whose cocks I was sucking sounded off in my mouth. That disgusting bitter slime jetted out of both cocks within a nano-second of each other, literally filling my gagging throat with their huge, thick loads.

Just the same, that was the ticket for me to shoot off as well. Geeks or not, those guys had incredible cocks and my body felt the total abuse that I needed to get off. I rolled over, wiping all that sticky jizz against the long, green shag carpeting in the back of the van, reached down between my legs and began jerking my prick.

These guys were gentlemen if nothing else at that point. They all made an effort to help me get off by rubbing, sucking, licking and fingering every inch on the outside and inside of my body. I shot off almost immediately.

Then, without a word I heard the van pull over, which was a bit of a surprise, since I didn't realize we had been moving with all that massive ass fucking and cock sucking I was having. Somebody got out through the front, came around back and opened the van up.

Without any warning I found my self heaped butt ass naked along the side of the road, my clothes and shoes in a gnarly, crumpled pile, and the geeks were gone.

I had absolutely no idea where I was. All I knew is that when I stood up it was like Niagara Falls, all that butt slime and grease from the gang fucking slid out of my ass in one, wet, nasty fart and down the back of my legs it all went. Pretty ripe. So that's the true story of my experience with the Hollywood Hackers. I've tried reaching them again by E-Mail and bulletin boards, but so far no good. I just hope to hack into some more of that crack slapping again real soon. Once you've been Hacked, you gotta go back.

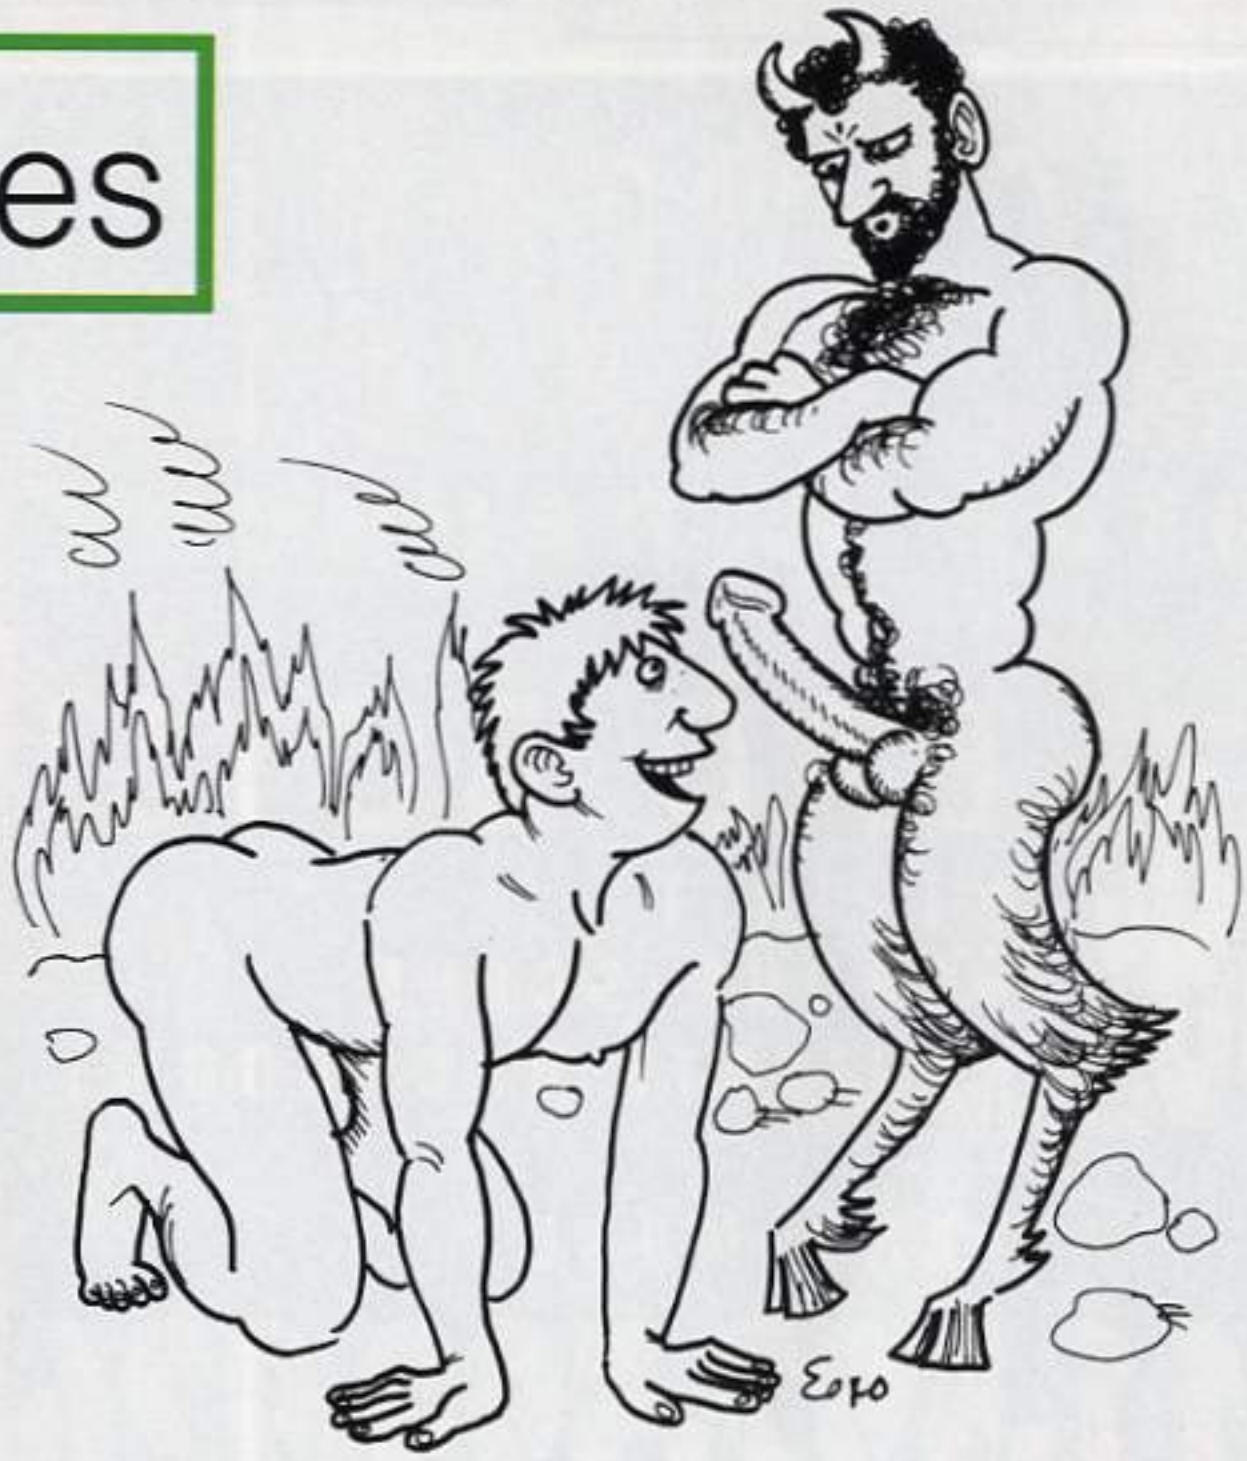
> How could I tell who was fucking me? They all looked the same in the dark. The only way I could tell them apart was by the size of their cocks which I measured over and over again in my ass, my mouth, my throat...

Hackers

The days of meeting men exclusively in bars, work or parties may be coming to an abrupt change in order with the onset of the sexy, fringy happenings along the internet...

HACK prerequisites

none, really. This crew is adaptable to smooth, exchanges across the world's information highway. To join the Hackers you don't even have to be a geek, matter of fact, more and more younger, attractive gay men are meeting friends and such through electronic mail and bulletin boards today than ever before. Watch out, geeks, the A-List is taking over fast!



"Get thee behind me, Satan!"

HIGHLY RESPECTED AUTHORS AND WRITERS, INTERNATIONALLY SYNDICATED COLUMNISTS, AWARED WINNING PHOTOGRAPHERS LIKE THE MEN AT FALCON, HUMORISTS, CARTOONISTS, POLITICAL COMMENTARIES AND MORE... ALL ADDED TO THE NUTS AND BOLTS OF THE MACHINE THAT HAS KEPT BLUEBOY IN THE FRONT LINE SALES AND PUMPING HARD THROUGH TWENTY-ONE YEARS OF A CUT THROAT, DOG-EAT-DOG PUBLISHING WHIRLING DERVISH WHERE ONLY THE STRONG HAVE SURVIVED. AND THE STRONGEST HAS SURVIVED TO GROW EVEN BIGGER. CHECK OUT THE ALL NEW BLUEBOY.

BIGGER, BETTER, SMARTER AND WAY COOLER.

BLUEBOY. NOW OF AGE.

TWENTY ONE YEARS YOUNG

BLUEBOY: of age. • The first and longest standing gay erotic sophisticate, published continuously since 1975 has an all new look; a progressive and newly enhanced editorial profile and will begin regular distribution on a four week per issue (thirteen times annually) basis beginning this summer. • With our young newly hired Manhattan super staff we have designed a dynamic art/visual and editorial profile to compliment this top gay best selling title. • Megacheese status spills across the pages of each future issue as "comfort zone" interviews are secured with the guys and dolls in our world who make sense. Buds with something to say about real stuff...not who or who isn't sucking their dick or diving the muff, but more importantly their life they want you to hear about. Calm or wild as they choose to take it. We're not out to bitch slap, we're in to chat and carry on. • Our exciting, young editorial slat encapsulates an effervescent bud-oriented lifestyle which showcases this eight time winner of the annual Pulse Prize by the International Gay and Lesbian Journalistic Guild for original design, literary content and community contribution. • Hollywood gossip with the E Channel's Flo Anthony [illegible] by top shelf authors, first hand tell alls from cheesey pervs with lots of pretty pix and sixteen pages (plus even more to come!) added make our all new Blueboy even bigger and better than ever before. We're here. Pick us up and watch us grow. Blueboy: Finally...of age.

ever seen before or since. Johnny and me. We were the bar-hopping, girl-talking fools; and, keeping on the go until the wee hours of the night had become our M-O.

"She sounded like a calf suckling a cow as she worked her messy snatch in the rhythm of Johnny and my man fucking...pity she couldn't join us; pity for her that is!"

One night we were in a Boca Raton lounge when he was approached by this not too hard on the eyes cow attending Florida Atlantic University. I went along with the "babe" thing, because I have found it to be the best way to score on straight dudes. Make them think you're straight, too, and let them think they're making the first move.

The cow worked fast. Kitty was in the backseat of Johnny's car reading off a list of cheesey hotels from memory with the two of us in the front seat figuring there would be no problem burying the bone that night. Or, at least that was what I figured Johnny was thinking each time he looked over at me and winked. I on the other hand was searching my soul thinking of ways we could ditch the bitch and I could get Johnny naked and off while he was still horny thinking about her.

We were at an adult motel in Ft. Lauderdale on Federal Highway. Kitty had to slide her stanky pink panties back up real slut like before she whined her way out of the backseat and in to pay for the room.

It was a dive. The perfect place to find Kitty tied up and gagged the next morning, sexually untouched and bitching long and hard about it to the maid who let her go. But that's not quite the way it went down.

Johnny turned on the television and turned to help Kitty undress. I felt a green fog rise from my stomach at the thought of kissing him after he'd been eating that rashy looking thing she called her sex between those massive, cottage cheesed thighs.

She claimed to be a blonde, but the stubbly, three week-growth that once luckily covered her oozing pussy was as black as the men that had been there before us.

Johnny had no difficulty slipping his shorts down and past his cock in front of the two of us. We gasped in unison, the cow and I, at the sight of Johnny's massive rod. I felt my loins begin to quiver just thinking about what it would be like to have that fist-like prick pounding my ass with those massive nuts slapping against my hole.

"Johnny pushed the cow back on the bed and began sucking on one of her tits while his hand went down to the face of hell between her legs. It was horrible. I thought it would be easier than it was turning out to be, just knowing I was with Johnny, but instead it was unbelievably annoying. I was jealous as hell and I wanted her dead. No, make that maimed.

It didn't take long before the stink hit. This slut didn't believe in rinsing after sex, ever. My guess was that whatever it was that was in there had been dead for months. And as luck would have it, the smell was too much for Johnny to handle. The minute it hit the air I watched his cock go limp.

" I got a game we can play, what do you say, Kitten?" Johnny asked the cow. She went along with it and the next thing I knew Johnny dragged the TV and cow into the bathroom and had her tied up in a chair facing the set.. He had the sound turned down and told her to listen hard and tell us what she thought the sounds were that she was about to hear. "For each right answer, you'll get a sexual prize," he promised her. She went for it.

Before I could believe it I was watching my dream stud coming back, butt naked into the room alone with me and he was hard again. His huge, throbbing cock pointing, I was sure, directly at my face. What's a guy to do? Naturally I began sucking it.

"Can you figure it out?" he called out to Kitten. "Can you guess what that sound is?"

Kitten was as dumb as a bag of rocks. She didn't have a clue at first, and with each wrong answer, Johnny went into the bathroom and turned the TV up a little bit more to make it harder for her to hear as a penalty. Before long we were going at it. What had started as a joking kind of touch-feel, had turned into a hot and heavy cock sucking 69. We were both naked and sucking each other's cocks down to the bush. That Johnny had had some practice at this, I could tell. But that didn't bother me at the moment. Just the fact that I was having him suddenly made the "straight" thing seem unimportant.

Then, without a word, he slid my cock from his mouth and guided it to his asshole. In one easy motion, he slid my cock into his ass and surprisingly, it slid in like there had been a few boys in there before me that night, all greased and easy.

It was truly incredible just the same. No bullshit with having to go slow and all. I could go all out on that ass and he did nothing whatsoever to make me slow down or pull out. He just arched that beautiful, round smooth ass farther in the air taking in every hard inch of my throbbing cock.

Pretty soon we were really going at it. That's about the time I think that Kitten figured out what was going on.

"Hey, what's going on in there?" she called out. "Get in here and untie me. I want to get some of that stuff."

Johnny needed no further encouragement. He went into the bathroom, untied Kitten, brought her back into the room, had her get dressed and sent her stanky butt sailing off in a cab.

From that point onward the night was ours. Johnny's ass muscles tightened around my cock from midnight until six in the morning. The hotel maid came busting in around seven thirty which is when I was finally getting my butt rammed by his cock. He'd been holding out all that time to dump his huge, manly load fucking my ass. When the maid came in, he pulled out and came down my crack and back of my balls. The door slammed too fast for me to catch her face, but she didn't come back until we were long gone. Even though my night with Johnny was the best sex I've ever had, after it was over he sorta freaked out and I never saw him again. I did see Kitten once. She was climbing into the back of a van with three black dudes.

When she saw me she flipped me off, but I just smiled and got in my car, hard again just thinking about our night together.

when the others left and they were pretty drunk before much time had passed. One of the girls was dancing by herself in the middle of the room and the guys started yelling at her to take it off.

"Even in her skin uniform of tight jeans, leather jacket and Doc Martens, this girl was really pretty. And when she took up the guys' dares and started to strip, the atmosphere in the clubhouse got really thick, if you know what I mean.

"By the time she peeled down to the men's underwear most of the girls use, I had a boner that wouldn't quit. When the pants came off and I saw her shaved pussy I knew I had to have her.

"Since I was the president they did anything I told them without question, it was part of the discipline. All I had to do was stand up, beckon her over and tell her to get on her knees.

"She hauled out my dick and started sucking it real good. And that was all it took. The other two guys were all over the other chick like flies on molasses. They stripped her down in seconds and had her sucking one guy's dick while the other one fucked her from behind.

"I threw my girl on the desk and boned her good. She was squealing like a pig by the time I dumped a load in her snatch. Before the night was over the three of us had fucked both of the girls a few times, taking turns as the mood moved us. I wound up with a sore dick because the other girl wasn't very good at giving head, but I couldn't complain.

"That kind of thing didn't happen all that often, but I never had to stay horny for long if there was a chick around. I always got first pick and the honor of breaking the girls in, since I was the president.

"Some of the guys paired off with girls once I wasn't interested anymore, but there were always new ones coming in. Most didn't stay long."

There are others unlike John who grow up but don't change their basic beliefs. Steven is in his early twenties, a leader of the White Workers Union, which he claims is the fastest growing skin group in the Dallas area.

He has let his hair grow out, drives a Mitsubishi pick-up and is a political science major at a Texas university. He was once a member of the Aryan Defense Force.

"It was little young skinheads and stuff," he explains, some as young as thirteen and already actively attending "boot" parties, drinking beer and wearing caps with the numerals 88 emblazoned on them. (88 stands for Heil Hitler, H being the eighth letter of the alphabet.)

As he says, "Some of us outgrow the hate, others dress it up. As they start maturing and finding there's more to life than fighting and drinking, they start seeing the political aspects of it and also the spiritual aspects."

Steven describes himself as a natural for transition. A news junkie all his life, he grew up on CNN and the MacNeil/Lehrer Newshour. His philosophy is the same as ever: a "white, sovereign homeland, maybe all the land north of the Rio Grande."

He says, "Skinheads grow up. They grow their hair out, they disappear and go into society undetected and nobody can tell who's who."

Far more than his outrageous colleagues, he projects an aura of extreme believability. It's a sobering thought that we could be surrounded by former skinheads, still wrapped in their philosophy of hatred, violence and segregation who are all but invisible within the larger society we live in.

Even more sobering is the vision of all those thirteen year old boys and girls being plied with beer at weekend parties and gatherings while their minds are filled with Nazi hate philosophy; being taught to fight, to vandalize, to use knives and guns, to kill, ultimately. And then to fade back into obscurity, their hatred still intact, but hidden.

> We are everywhere, and we are nowhere; you fail to see us but we are here . . .

Illustrating that thought is the following poem which appeared in War Ax, a "skinzine" published by Georgia's SS of America.

HEIL

"We are everywhere, and we are nowhere;
You fail to see us, but we are here ...
We are the predators in your urban jungles
And our time to strike is fast approaching."

But then it couldn't happen again, now, could it?

"Before I saw Hal Rockland in action in yet another incredibly hot Falcon video I wasn't much into uncut guys. They always seemed so cheesey; you know, like they came from a bad part of town. Not exactly Ivy League if you know what I mean. And then along came the Rockland brothers. First Hal, then his real brother Vince. Since then I've been in love. And I even ventured out to find a man (via the internet) who was uncircumsized. I just had to give it a try, and I' here to tell you that I was glad I did it. Now I've found myself a hot boyfriend who's not only uncut, he's way Ivy League. I never experienced a feeling quite like the one you get when a smooth, hard uncut cock slides up into your butthole. It goes in easy and it works that snatch like crazy. If there were a way you could get this letter to Hal, I'd appreciate it. Hal, you are the hottest (next to my boyfriend) guy I've ever seen naked. You're brother's right up there to, (where I'd like both of you!)"

"I turned on my first video and discovered Hal Rockland. He may not remember me but my name is Ricky P., I was known as R.P. back in school. In any case, I had a total crush on Hal back then and had I known where his future career was headed, I would have made major moves back then. I never would have guessed he was gay.."

"I can't think of anything I'd rather see than Hal Rockland fucking Vince. Why can't that happen? They're both so incredibly hot I, for one, would pay anything I had to see some of that nasty action. In my fantasies, I picture Hal on top and Vince begging for his big bro to pound his ho hole. Sales would make you both way rich and pervs like me way crazy."

"I've never written to a porn star before. I've always wanted to but figured they've never get the letter or wouldn't bother reading it let along writing back. But with the 'cumming' of Hal Rockland I have put my ferry fears to rest and decided to break out the pen and pad and see what gives.

"Hal, if you're out there someplace and happen to read this letter, I love you. That incredible body and hot, big prick isn't what sends me (but they certainly could given half a chance.) What turns me on the most are those eyes of yours. Just looking at you makes me shoot my load without even jerking off. I would be in heaven if you would write back or maybe even call. If possible, how about sending me a pair of your (well worn) Calvin Kleins? I'm a live long devoted fan."

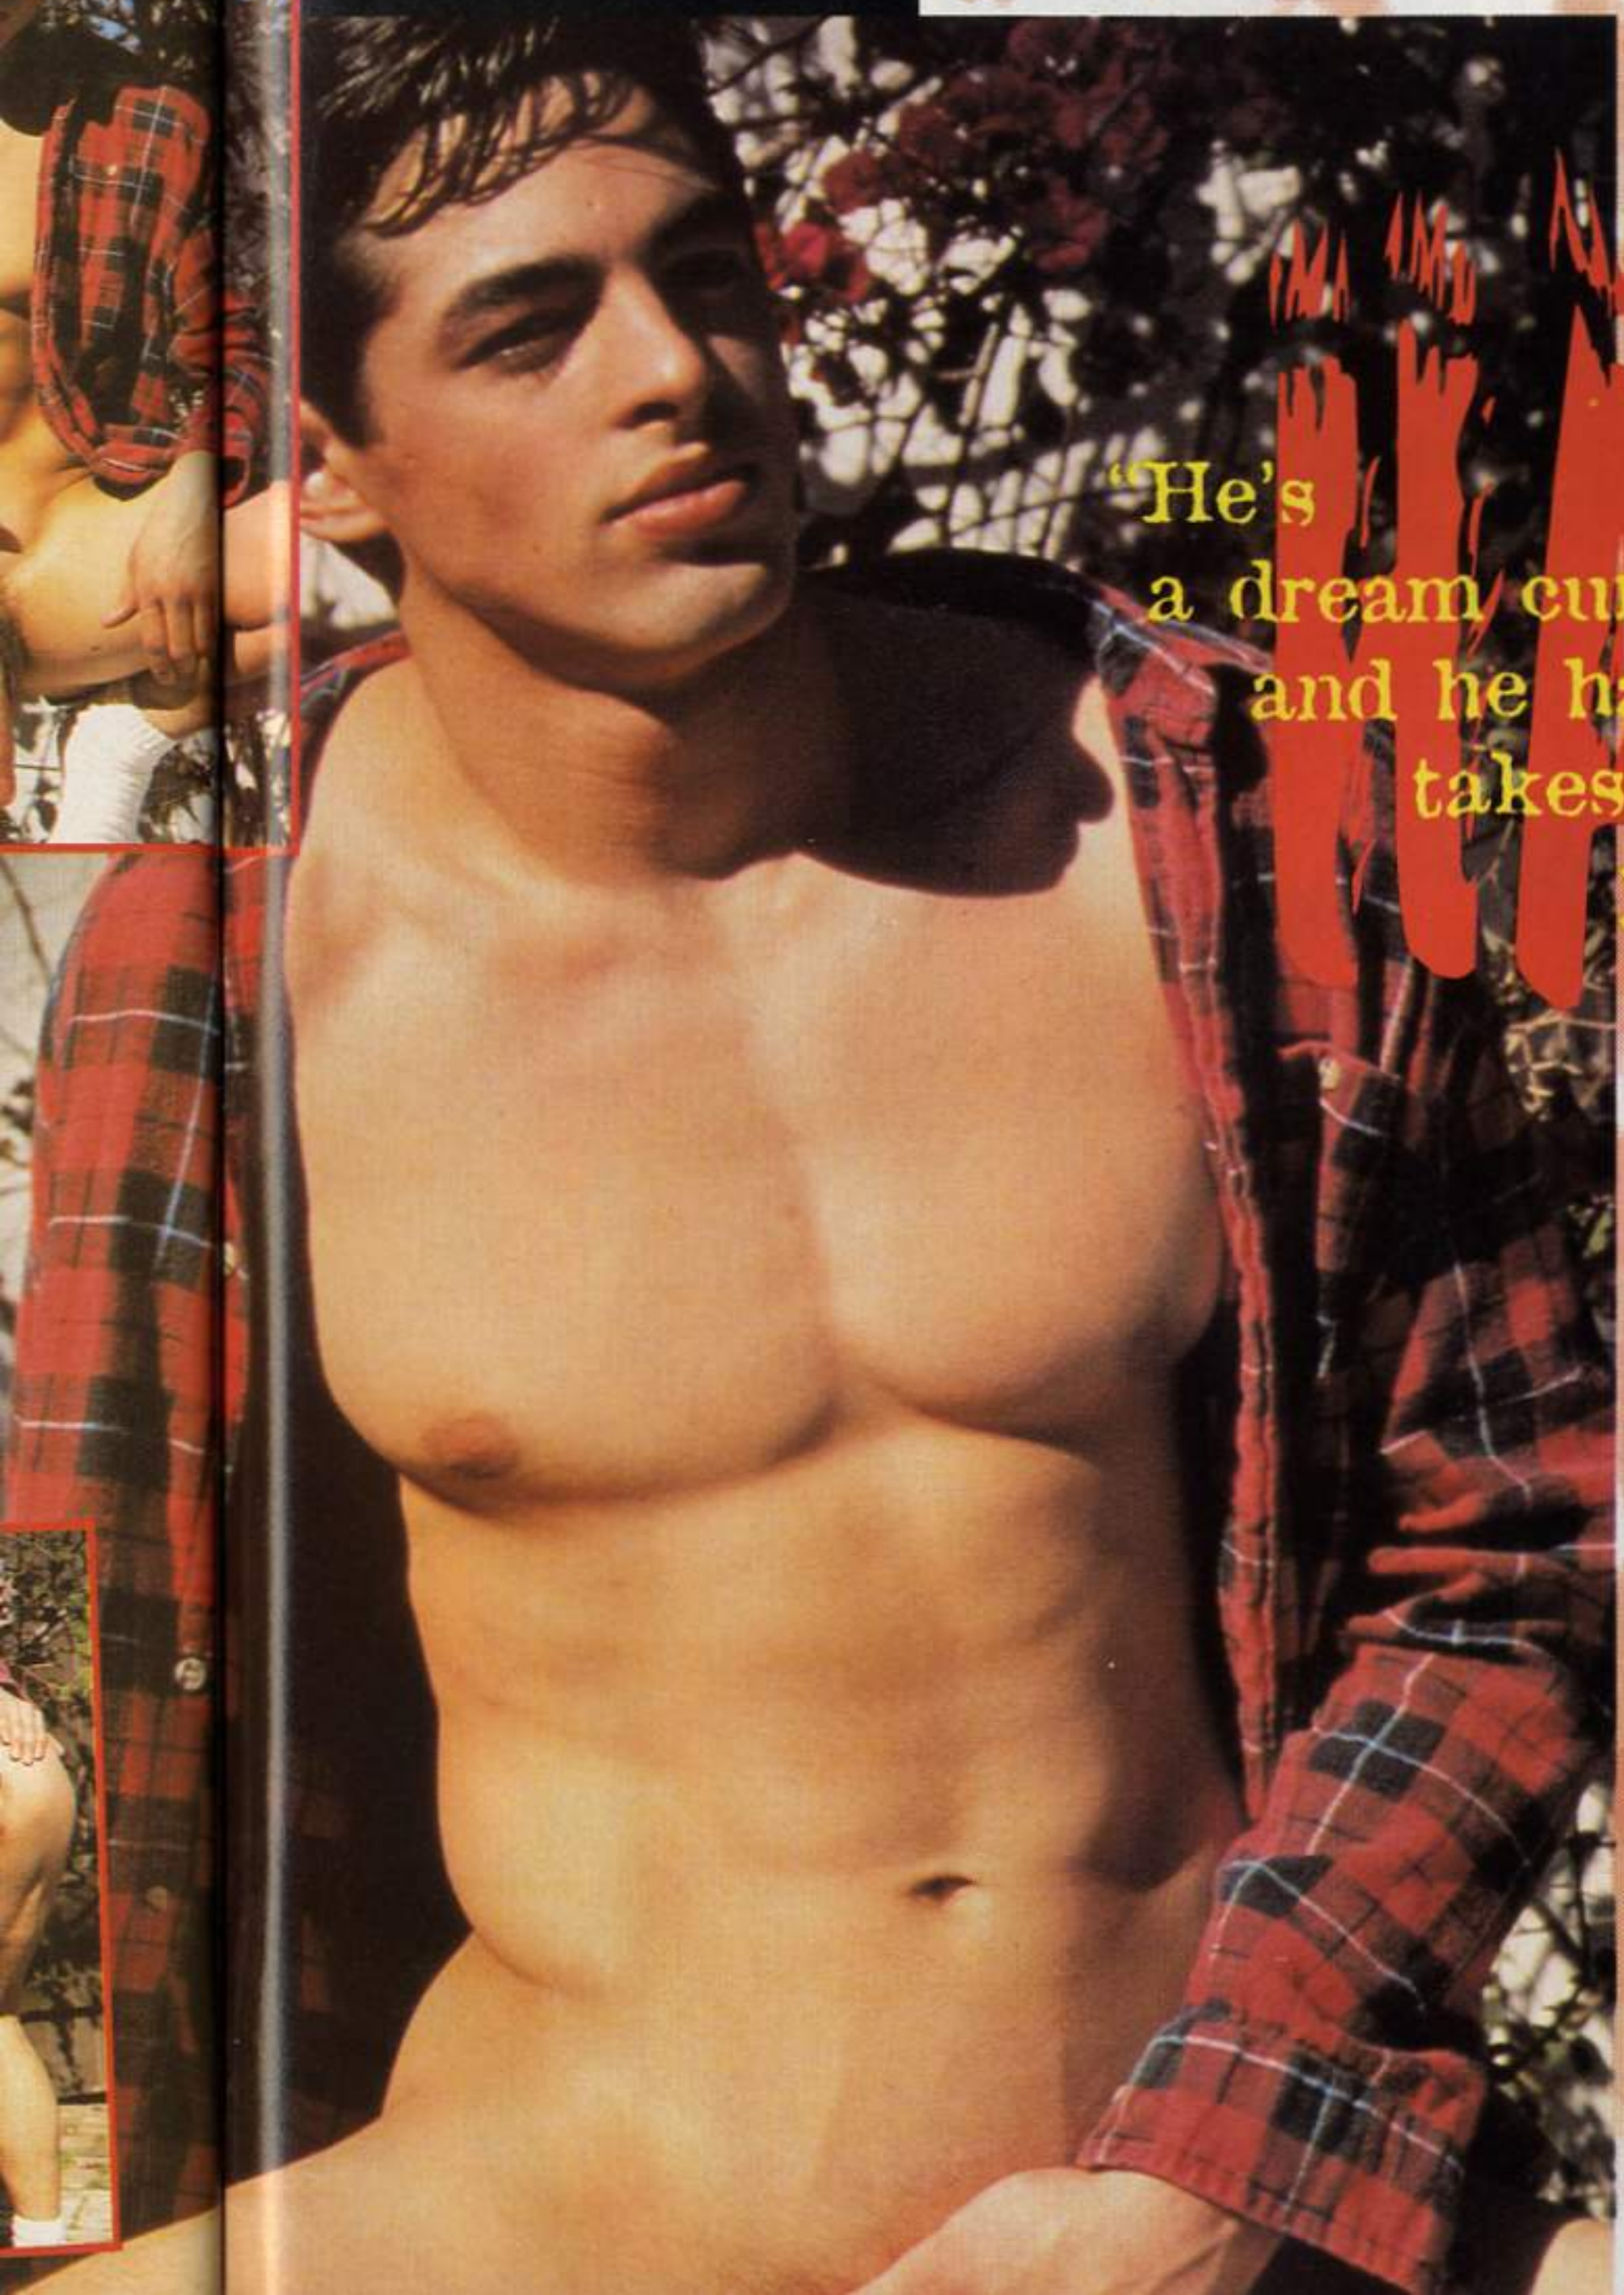
"I picture myself in the middle getting fucked by first Hal while I'm eating Vince's smooth, shaved man pussy. Then I'd lick his balls as Hal pounded his load up my quivering asshole only to be followed by another violent ass reaming by Vince."



"He's
a dream cum true and he has all it takes to take your all..."

all-about men

major turnoffs

by Karla Voss

Trying to dig into his past and psychoanalyze your potential beau is a fast way of getting the boot, or fist. Forget about playing shrink and follow these top seven to-dont's that turn him way off way fast...here's how to avoid them!

relationship advice:

1 On and on about the ex-factor(s)...

The man you let go is a big shot, and you think your current lover wants updates on your former flame's professional or physical triumphs? Get a grip. Nothing is more likely to sour a new sweet than to saturate him with your ex honey. Discussing how successful your ex is may be a problem, but discussing your prior sexual agenda (like how much bigger your ex's dick was than your new beau, or whatever) is suicide for your new relationship.

Most psychologists agree that new lovers find old lovers threatening early in a relationship. Many new flames know that it's tough to give up an old boyfriend, and, likewise, that many new relationships are brought about in an effort to replace an old with a new and the competitive edge is not the thing to bring into your new romance.

2 Nagging ho...

Nobody ever likes to be nagged. Even when you think you're doing it playfully, nothing is more annoying and as undesirable than a nag, even when you're right.

The best way to attack this domestic discord is to present the problem as a challenge for the both of you to conquer. Something to the effect of, "Let's sit down and figure out how we can solve this little problem," is a good starting point. This works well on the little things that build into big things before you know it, as well as a solid, caring introduction to matters of more importance.

3 Bitching about his family...

Get over it, you hag. If he complains about his mom, that doesn't mean you can. Think about all those police dramas you've seen on TV when the cop comes in to break up a domestic dispute. Who gets the shit blown his way by whom? The cop; from both sides. Avoid getting into the middle of things unless it's two naked men and neither one of them is or knows your lover.

Remember this, those who are closest to you are most likely to be the ones you discuss the most in your life, good, bad or indifferent. And, depending upon the immediate situation, without taking into consideration the long term picture, tempers flare at the drop of a pin. Picking up that pin may very well burst your bubble if you're not careful. Even if all you think you're doing is helping by agreeing. Don't.

4 Pointing out his faults...

What are you, crazy? How do you feel how to make him moan...

when somebody points out yours? What if you have a little dick...would you like him running around telling everybody about that?

A lot of these do's and don'ts just take a little common sense and introspection to see where you're going with it. In the case of pointing out your beau's faults, you're inasmuch as telling him that you're not happy with him. You're not being constructive when you don't offer an alternative, you're only hurting his feelings or wedging a block in your relationship that may not mend so easily, depending on the situation. The man you love can fall on his face just like th next guy. So why should he turn into a raving, self-defensive lunatic when you innocently observe that he's made a mess of things? If you point out his mistakes, he's probably going to defend them, even though he may secretly agree with you. The devil's advocate, as it were. A lot has to do with ego.

Empathy is the best policy here.

5 Putting yourself down...

What's with you, you moron. Why in the world would you put yourself down unless you're a stand-up comic? Putting yourself down serves no purpose whatsoever. If you're after some form of instant support from your lover/beau, forget it. People who don't respect themselves don't earn the respect they may otherwise deserve from others. And your boyfriend is no exception.

Your body is a very special mechanical contraption. When you put yourself down, or think negative thoughts, you're sending a very bad message throughout your body and throughout the body of anyone listening to your negativity. These messages may be casually dismissed in your beta or conscious state, but deep down these same messages may be instructing or inscribing that negativity to form a negative result. Why do you think that "have a nice day" shit is still going around? It's not that anybody really means it, it's just that by saying it you instill a positive thought that carries the message beyond the body's controlled sensories and deep into your 'mechanics.' Silly as it may sound, start each day telling yourself how good you feel and what a great person you are and want to be, and the results will amaze you. The impetus here is on the mechanical, not the moral implications. Back to putting yourself down is the same thing. Whenever you're about to descent into an orgy of self-depreciation with your man for an audience, try a quick self-confidence fix instead. Get your man to tell you about some of the things about you that he loves, or at least can handle.This will make the two of you feel better, and in the long run, it will better help to mold you into the positive future you truly deserve, free of the unrealistic burdens brought about by poor programming.

6 Bemoaning his numerous sexual shortcomings...

If you love the one you're with, then love the one you're with. Steadily or even occasionally striking out at your beau's shortcomings, whether real or imagined for the sole purpose of hurting or hurting back is a mistake. You'll never, never, never win with this one. Unless it's way over and you're just having a good laugh, then go for it. But the damage you can cause by humiliating (which you can do even if the two of you are alone) your lover for things that may very well be nothing he can do anything about is lame and way unproductive.

So how do you make your man a sex god if he's just not there? The best strategy is to demonstrate what you want him to do to you. You have the unique relationship, being gay, to do just that. Show him how things aren't right and how to make them better. Part of being young carries with it the burden of being inexperienced, no matter how much experience you or he may think you have. Much of the type of experience that lends to a fab sex life comes in time, and in time with the same person as often times sexual greats are non-transferrable. Package deal sort of thing. Get him to do it your way and explain how great it is if he just gives it a try. Under no circumstances put him down no matter how lousy he is. If, on the other hand he doesn't improve, then get rid of him. Sex is, after all, the most important longstanding thing in a relationship. Without it, you become bitter(er), old queens.

7 Holding a grudge...

If your man is devoted to you, but still you find yourself smoldering for days when he slips up, you need to douse your anger. You don't like giving up a grudge because you feel that then the other person has won, he hasn't had to recognize how bad he was or how right you really are. To make it easier, think of forgiving him as something good you can give the relationship and yourself. Write your gripes down on paper then burn it. Just let it go up in smoke.
